

Now

A Pre-Christmas Fable With F.M.L.

This is St. Nick, via satellite, advising clearance at 12:01 Greenwich Mean Time, for the usual incredible trip at speed of light to the usual incredible number of homes. Please clear your chimneys.

TV COMMENTATOR: This is Chutney A. Misanthrope, hoping to give a trip summary of a famous diplomat, world traveler and ageless "jet-setter" who, as you know, is now underway for his "usual incredible trip at speed of light to the usual incredible number of homes". That is a direct quote. How is the jet-stream, Santa?

ST. NICK: Unless you are 10 or under, don't presume too much familiarity Chut. The world needs me. I am, indeed, a busy man. To answer your question, wind velocity is normal, wind turbulent, humidity high, turning frosty as my temperature reading heads to a normal below zero. My jingle bells are shattering the intense cold. Donder and Blitzen want to cop out. But no matter.

TV COMMENTATOR: We had you on ground camera for the first few miles off the North Pole Cape, and now we are tracking by radar. Sound is clear. From the blips on the scope, I would agree your reindeer are angry.

ST. NICK: The ones running true to form may be on something. Modern reindeer. Donder and Blitzen will endure. They always have.

TV COMMENTATOR: We are getting reports from Scandinavia that kids stockings are filled in Fjord country along the North Sea, that Christmas trees in West Germany have presents under them, that Yule logs in England are igniting as if by some spontaneous combustion. You're in good form tonight, Santa.

ST. NICK: Splendid flight plan. Chimney clearance a bit snug, particularly in the Netherlands. And ol' Donder confuses windmills for tops of houses.

TV ANNOUNCER: We have you on camera in Northern Italy. That was an incredible pass you made over Bern and those Swiss Alps. It would seem your sleigh handles well. We have you turning east, no back west. What was that?

ST. NICK: Iron curtain, or reasonable facsimile. Lots of ill will over Czechoslovakia. Decided to wait 'til next year.

TV ANNOUNCER: Malta TV caught a fleeting glimpse of light heading west over the Mediterranean. Already through in Europe?

ST. NICK: Climate is warm here at Buenos Aires. Filled several hundred thousand Pinatas in a few seconds. Not bad. Sleigh running even better with reduced load. North American load incredible this year. Thought we might have trouble over the Sargasso Sea a few minutes ago. Donder and Blitzen are fantastic reindeer. Holding the whole, hopped-up crew in line. Some biting and snapping goin' on. Think we finished with Dutch Guiana. Heading for Central America. Mexico City is beautiful this time of year. Afraid, however, smog is high.

TV ANNOUNCER: Yes, satellite communication has you over Mexico, D. F. How do you do it, Santa? The sky is lighting up to the north. You must be in the Valley, South Texas.

ST. NICK: Approach the U.S. from a different direction every Christmas. Keeps tens of millions guessing. Always waiting up for me. If you don't change the flight plan, some Yankee kid might see what it's all about. Think that's Kansas City down there. We turn east here, Reindeer work Southeast to Northeast, buzz Canada and Northwest, try California last before the big turn north for home.

TV ANNOUNCER: Network reports find tons of stuff in every city and suburb, Santa. Small towns are doing nicely. You sure put out a blanket of light.

ST. NICK: Got to, Chut, it's my job. Professional pride, you know. Wish I could find a warm welcome all over the world. Reindeer learned a number of years ago a Bamboo Curtain is just as obnoxious as iron. Don't know what to think of people these days. We always take a look at the China Wall, though, amazing construction job. Saw it from the moon one time. Only man-made thing visible from out there.

TV ANNOUNCER: We have you on radar heading north over Alaska. Would you say it's been a good mission?

ST. NICK: One of the best. Burned my suit in one of those California fire places, though. And Donder was even having trouble with Blitzen. Looks like he's on something too. What a trip!

TV ANNOUNCER: You're a wonder, Santa. And those reindeer. Incredible speed, incredible. Could you sum up for our tens of millions who can't see you, but believe in you, Santa?

ST. NICK: Everything is in place, kids. I'm good for another trip as long as you want me.

TV ANNOUNCER: We're pretty certain they want you, Santa. They talked for weeks with your sales reps all over this country. And they thought about you in all those other countries.

ST. NICK: It's the thought that counts, Chut. Makes the trip worthwhile. And it sure turns these reindeer on. I think maybe the elves may have hopped things intentionally. But that's elves, for you.

TV ANNOUNCER: Your signal is a little dim, Santa. Would you sign us off?

ST. NICK: My pleasure. "MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL AND TO ALL A GOOD NIGHT." How's that? Read that somewhere. Good night, Chut.

TV ANNOUNCER: Good night, Nick.

Area Roundup

Judge Declares Mistrial

EDINBURG

The murder-for-hire trial of Charles Harrison of Houston ended as a mistrial Wednesday after jurors said they were hopelessly deadlocked. Harrison, 33, was charged with murder with malice in the July 6, 1968 shooting death of Sam Degelia Jr., a Hearne grain dealer, near McAllen.

Santa Pals Cheer Families

For 1,499 Temple residents, Christmas 1971 was a bleak prospect. Now they are on the Santa Pal list which includes 1,086 children among 289 families. Santa Pal will distribute Christmas packages to the families on the list next Wednesday.

Baylor Gets New Coach

WACO

University of New Mexico Coach Rudy Feldman, a 39-year-old native Californian with a high-octane offense, a winning personality, and a winning touch, Thursday was named the new head football coach at Baylor University. Feldman succeeds Bill Beall, whose contract was terminated in late November after his teams over a three-year span had posted a 3-28 record.

Funds For Kinsolving Lodge

BELTON

Bell County will add $3,240 to its 1972 budgeted funds for Kinsolving Canyon Lodge. The lodge, operated through the Central Texas Council of Governments, is for children who have nowhere else to go. The lodge handled 42 children between its opening on Sept. 1 and Dec. 1 of this year.

'On Collision Course'

COLLEGESTATION

Two big freedoms -- the right to a clean environment and the privilege of pollution -- were described here as on a collision course. Dr. J. G. Hrosfall, director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, said the time is coming when these freedoms can no longer exist side by side. He said that the main conflict now is between an ever-growing population and a finite or limited environment.

Mutscher Named To Council

BURLESON CO.

Texas House Speaker Gus F. Mutscher, who is under indictment in the Sharp stock scandals, was elected to be a member of the governing board of the National Council of State Governments at that organization's annual meeting in Washington, D. C.

Civic, Church Groups Prepare Christmas Gifts

Members of the Cameron Volunteer Firemen Ladies Auxiliary and the Cameron Ministerial Alliance coordinated plans to bring Christmas to 150 Cameron area families.

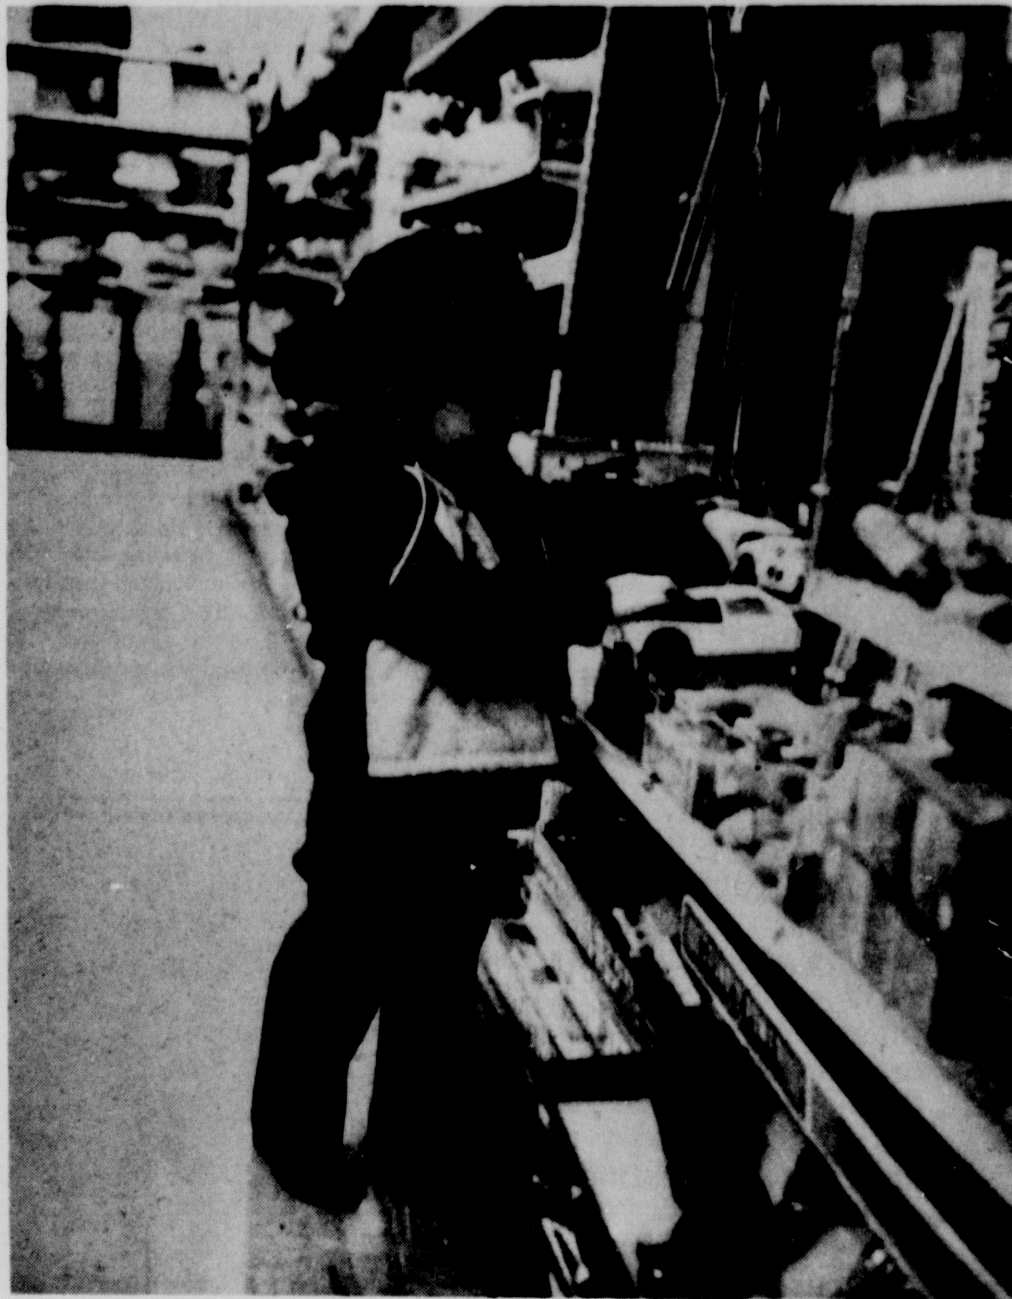

The Firemen's Auxiliary prepared fruit and candy baskets for more than 100 needy families Tuesday night and distributed them in Cameron and Ben Arnold. It was the second year for the Auxiliary's Santa Pal program which was funded by a candy sale.

Rev. H. M. Bowley, president of the Ministerial Alliance, said 49 families were being adopted by Cameron and Maysfield churches this Christmas.

He said Christmas gift boxes will be delivered next week by participating churches: First Presbyterian, Abiding Saviour Lutheran, Assembly of God, First Baptist, First Christian, First Methodist, St. Monica's Catholic Church and the Gospel Tabernacle.

Folk Fete Officers

N. L. Caperton has been named president of the newly organized Folk Fete, Inc.; L. W. Stroup Jr., is treasurer, and Mrs. Janice Turner is secretary.

THE WISHING SEASON is here and young Jimmy Eixman says it's fine with him as he tries out some of the bright toys in a local variety store.

County Views Insurance

Bids were opened Thursday at Milam County Commissioners Court on county liability insurance coverage for 1972.

Low bidder for the general liability and workmens compensation insurance was Employers Casualty Co. of Austin. Also bidding was James Camp of Cameron.

Employers Casualty Co. submitted a bid of $3,764 for general liability and about $7,000 for workmens compensation.

Camp bid $5,185 for general liability and about $7,000 for workmens compensation.

Camp, who met with Commissioners Thursday explained that workmens compensation would fluctuate depending on salaries paid, number of employees and experience rating. He indicated that dividends could bring it as low as $4,500.

Commissioners indicated that they preferred to have a local insurance agent, but voted to meet with a representative of the Austin firm to determine if benefits were the same.

John Andres, County auditor, said invitations to bid on the county insurance were sent to six firms. Only two responded.

In other business Commissioners: Re-appointed Dr. S. H. Richardson of Cameron as County Health Officer;

Agreed to pass a resolution as Pond Creek Watershed sponsors regarding relocations funds following examination of the resolution by County Attorney John Henderson to assure that the county would not be held responsible for relocation funding;

Heard a presentation by Burrough representative regarding $15,000 billing machine for the county tax office. Commissioners took the proposal under advisement and decided to call for bids on a new billing machine;

Accepted a low bid of $2,672 by Blume Irrigation Co. of Waco for a complete sprinkler system for the courthouse grounds.

Walls 'Tumbling Down'

Walls of the old Auditorium Hotel are coming down, and demolition has started on the Lehnert Drug and TVA Bar buildings, according to a report from A. W. McCullin, urban renewal executive director.

McCullin said cleanup is continuing at the corner of N. Central and Main St. in hopes of providing extra parking space for Christmas shoppers. Streets were cleaned off for parking.

In other urban renewal news, McCullin said the agency is still processing loans for rehabilitation. The applications are now in the Dallas area office.

McCullin also said the UR awning committee has chosen an awning

Cities Ask County For Fire Funds

Cameron Mayor E. A. Perrin and Rockdale Mayor Harold Luckey met with county commissioners Thursday to request $4,000 a year from the county treasury for each city to fight rural fires.

The request from Cameron and Rockdale followed a request by Thorndale Mayor Martin Janke for $2,500 for that city's fire department in a commissioners court meeting Monday.

Mayor Perrin, acting as spokesman for the two cities, told Commissioners that in the past year 54 percent of Cameron Fire Department calls were for fires outside the city limits.

"Cameron fire equipment logged 496 miles for out-of-city calls and 131 miles for in-city calls," Perrin said. He said Rockdale estimated that 60 percent of their fire calls were for fires outside their city limits.

Perrin said that Rockdale, Cameron and Thorndale wanted to continue the fire service in rural areas but felt "the county should recognize they have an obligation to fight fires in the county."

He pointed out that the City of Cameron budgeted over $15,000 a year for the volunteer fire department. "We are not asking for a gift," Perrin said, "we're asking that you work with us."

Presently the county is paying a maximum of $850 a year to each city for rural fire protection.

All three mayors pointed out that their cities were faced with the purchase of new fire trucks which cost about $25,000. Perrin said Cameron was setting aside $4,000 annually towards the purchase of a new fire engine.

Mayor Luckey said Rockdale is buying new fire equipment on borrowed money. He added "The people in the country are our friends and we're not going to stop going out there to fight fires, but we think the county should help."

Commissioners took the request under advisement.

Irony...Indian Style....

Unilateral peace has come in the Pakistani-Indian War of recent weeks. Prime Minister Nehru announced India's decision after occupying capital city Dacca in what once was East Pakistan.

Now it is another independent state called Bangla Desh, already making diplomatic overtures for recognition and aid from the United States. Bangla Desh leadership also joined India's criticism of U.S. stance over the brief war.

This action follows U.S. stance which, in effect, supported Pakistan while Russia sided with India. Red China also supported, apparently, Pakistan.

This is rather quick ending to another religious war, which at Christmastime, seems out of context. But so is the struggle in Northern Ireland. And, of course, Israel and Arab Nations are all but back at it.

Irony upon irony piles upon a world power. We are about to recognize a new, weak, insolvent, independent nation which already attacks our position in the question. We pay for wounds we have, indirectly, inflicted through long-term military aid to Pakistan, in our interest, of course. Then we probably pay what might be considered tribute to a nation incapable of caring for itself.

India will likely give aid itself, but that is ridiculous when famine faces a considerable percentage of India's people every few years. India is considered the most democratic of nations, but her economics have yet, if ever they will, to catch up to her progressive politics.

The choice boils down to whether additional aid will come from U. S. or Russia or possibly Red China. This tripartite hydra of world powers will mull over the alternatives, but it will be the U. S. who first commits. China will let us go first and Russia may give comfort to India for any aid India gives the new nation.

A conflict has ended. Ideology and economics now will take a new toll.

Letters to the Editor

December 14, 1971

Dear Frank:

My friend, Ted Serrill of the Washington Newspaper Association, saw the wonderful piece you wrote about me in your December 2 issue, and sent me a copy. I write to express my special thanks. I have had you as a friend, colleague, and admiring former student and know that what you wrote is from the bottom of your heart, and I appreciate it all the more.

Your article comes to me today in the hospital where I am recuperating from a recurrence of the cancer I first had in 1965. Also coming at the Christmas Season makes your letter all the more touching for me.

I am sending you a copy of a book I brought out last December. I think you'll find parts of it, at least, interesting. It is a symposium book of National Conference papers I got a grant for. The writing in italics is ye editor's.

Best personal regards, and good wishes for you and your family.

Sincerely,
Jim Markham

P.S. I scribbled this out at the hospital and my secretary types it. Jim

VA Employs Veterans

The Veterans Administration now employs more than 11,500 Vietnam veterans. Jack Coker, VA Regional Office Director at Waco reported today.

Coker said most of the new employees work in the agency's hospitals as nursing assistants. Medical technicians, food service employees, drug and alcoholist counselors, and in many other categories.

The total, he added, includes nearly 5,500 hired under Veterans' Readjustment Appointments since the order establishing these was signed by the President March 26, 1970.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Bumpy Flight

One moment Myrtle was gazing peacefully out the airplane window, admiring the view. The next moment the plane struck an air pocket, lurched downward, and tossed Myrtle right out of her seat.

The jolt dislocated her shoulder, and in due course she filed a damage suit against the airline.

"As a common carrier," she argued, "the airline was obliged to deliver me safely to my destination. This they failed to do."

However, the court ruled that the plane's sudden plunge was an "act of God," hence nobody's fault. The court said that a bumpy ride is not yet possible under today's technology—and even a common carrier should not be expected to do the impossible.

Nevertheless, it is expected to do all it can. In another case, a pilot neglected to turn on the FASTEN YOUR SEAT BELT sign even though his plane had already entered a zone of turbulence. This time, when a passenger was injured in an accident like Myrtle's, he was held entitled to collect damages from the airline.

In a third case, a man was assured by a stewardess that there was "still time" to go to the washroom, just as the plane was approaching a known patch of choppy air. Again, injury. And again, airline liability.

But it is also true that the passenger must do his share to minimize the risk.

One passenger obediently hooked up his seat belt when the warning sign went on. But he left so much slack in the belt that there was still plenty of room for him to bounce. And when the plane hit turbulence, he did bounce—hard.

Afterward, the man tried to collect damages for the injuries he had sustained. He blamed the stewardess for not double-checking his belt.

But the court threw out his claim. For having suffered an accident he could easily have avoided, said the court, he had no one to blame but himself.

Poage Votes For Tax Reductions

The house passed "the largest tax reduction bill that I can remember," Cong. W. R. Poage said in his weekly newsletter. He said the bill should give considerable impetus to the economy.

"I voted for the Conference Report because I believe we need this incentive, although it contained a provision which I think is unsound and has no place in a tax bill," he said.

He was speaking of the "voluntary" checkoff to enable taxpayers to contribute to the support of political parties.

"I believe in political parties," he said, "but I think that when they look to the government for support we are going to have the same problems that they have in Russia. But under the procedure, one had to vote for the whole measure or vote against all of it."

Poage said he voted against the foreign aid bill because he feels that the United States should go still further in cutting down foreign aid.

Economic Stabilization

Questions and Answers

This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

Q - What kinds of price increases are permitted during Phase II?

A - The basic policy set by the Price Commission is that price increases will not be allowed except as justified on the basis of cost increases in effect on or after November 14, 1971, taking into account productivity gains. While price increases, in the aggregate, must not exceed 2 1/2 per cent per year, many adjustments will be below 2 1/2 per cent, and some will be above this figure as justified by cost increases and other factors. Price increases will not be granted to any individual or firm to compensate for losses from increased costs that couldn't be passed on during the August 16 - November 13 freeze.

Q - How do these rules apply to manufacturers and service industries?

A - Price charged by manufacturers, service industries and professions may not be increased over freeze period levels, except as a result of allowable cost increases in effect on or after November 14, adjusted to reflect productivity gains. In any event, price increases must not result in any increase in a firm's pre-tax profit margin (as a percentage of sales) as established during the firm's base period.

Q - How are retail and wholesale prices controlled?

A - Retail and wholesale prices are controlled on the basis of customary initial percentage markups which are applied to the cost of the merchandise or service. These customary initial percentage markups cannot be higher than those in the markup base period. Moreover, a firm may not increase its prices beyond that amount which would bring its net profit rate before taxes (as a percentage of sales) to a level greater than that in the base period.

Retailers are to post prominently the ir base period prices for all covered food items and for many other selected items other than food as specified in the regulations. Until all such selected prices are posted, retailers are not permitted to increase any prices. In any event, such base period prices must be posted no later than January 1, 1972.

Q - What is the general pay standard applicable to new labor agreements?

A - The general pay standard applicable to new labor agreements and, where no labor agreement is in effect, to existing pay practices, permits annual aggregate increases normally considered supportable by productivity improvement and cost of living trends. Initially, this general pay standard is established at 5.5 per cent.

In reviewing new contracts and pay practices, the Pay Board will consider ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices and the equitable position of the employees involved, including the impact of recent changes in the cost of living upon the employee's compensation.

Q - Next month I am scheduled to receive a pay increase higher than 5.5 per cent under the terms of a contract negotiated before August 15. Can I get the increase?

A - Yes. Existing contracts and pay practices previously set forth will be allowed to operate according to their terms, except that specific contracts or pay practices are subject to review, when challenged by a party at interest (i.e., either labor or management) or by at least five members of the Pay Board, to determine whether any increase is unreasonably inconsistent with the Board's criteria.

WestGermany Takes Steps To Clear Up Pollution

By Bernard Melunsky
Reuter Correspondent

West Germany is taking the first steps in an ambitious effort to clear up a major problem of its post-war industrial boom -- contamination of its air and water.

But the Bonn government faces big legal and constitutional hurdles before it can put into effect plans for a coordinated nationwide attack on the problem.

The government has signalled its determination to act against mounting pollution. Some 12 million tons of dust, sulphur dioxide and carbon monoxide are pumped into the country's air annually by factories and motor cars. Rivers are clogged with foul-smelling chemicals, and the flood of garbage produced by the consumer society seems endless.

Many West Germans -- particularly the young -- are aware of the crisis, and are worried. When Interior Minister Hans - Dietrich Genscher introduced a long-term government anti-pollution program in the Bundestag (lower house of parliament) on Dec. 3, the public galleries were crowded with young people.

But because of West Germany's federal system, the Bonn government is a little like a shackled giant when it comes to dealing with environmental matters.

The present program -- which was welcomed by parliamentarians of all parties and is now being discussed by five Bundestag committees -- is a bundle of guidelines for states and local authorities and plans for the future.

But at the moment most of these plans cannot be put into force by passing individual laws.

The reason is that competence to legislate on environmental matters is vested only partly in the federal government and partly in the state governments.

Motions to extend the Bonn government's authority by changing the country's "Basic Law" (constitution) are currently being discussed by parliamentary committees.

The government however, has already put four draft laws to protect the environment before parliament. A law limiting the lead content of gasoline is already in force.

But these measures, as well as steps taken by state and local authorities, represent only a fraction of the broad anti-pollution design embodied in the government's new program.

The government's goal is to put environmental planning and conservation on a uniform footing -- eliminating the present regional differences -- as a prelude to a long-term policy.

It wants to set up, among other things, a federal institute to combat pollution, as well as a council of experts which will provide the government with scientific advice.

The program's basic principles include:

- Making those responsible for causing damage to the environment bear the costs of the damage.
- Development of a technology which is "kind to the environment."

--International cooperation in anti-pollution measures.

--Fiscal and tax measures by the Federal government to provide greater incentive for investments which take the environment into consideration.

To many West Germans, the most dramatic symbol of the way industrial waste is clogging up their country is what has happened to the River Rhine.

This great waterway, which winds romantically through the countryside and has inspired countless German writers and composers is now often talked of derisively as "Europe's sewer."

"A navigable canal filled with industrial waste water," said one weekly newspaper, Die Zeit.

And the mass-circulation Bild am Sonntag published a picture calculated to shock even those to whom pollution is an overused and abstract word.

The photograph, which showed a young woman wading in the Rhine had been developed by dipping it into the river -- which contained enough chemicals to do the job of a dark-room solution.

Barnes Outlines Rural Program

Lieutenant Governor Ben Barnes Tuesday outlined a far-reaching program to "revitalize rural Texas" which will be the cornerstone of the farmplatform in his race for Governor next year.

Speaking before a statewide meeting of the Texas Farmers Union in San Antonio, Barnes dealt with problems ranging from water conservation to marketing, research and health.

He proposed a Rural Development Commission consisting of more than 100 Texans from all walks of rural life.

"This Commission will be broken into sub-committees and assigned specific areas of study," Barnes said. "It then will report its findings and recommendations to the Governor's office for implementation."

The Lieutenant Governor stressed his belief the "entire future of rural Texas can be uplifted and turned around by the findings of this panel."

Barnes also proposed establishment of a Department of Rural Development within the Texas Industrial Commission.

"Such a department would be responsible for making a statewide survey to determine the desires of all areas in the search for new rural industries," Barnes commented.

He pledged to include rural representation in all policy decisions coming from the Governor's office which affect non-urban Texas.

"We have been planning long enough on water," Barnes told his audience. "We must get to work, but we must keep in mind the final Texas water plan must provide equal distribution statewide."

The Lieutenant Governor

said state and local governments "must move more aggressively in conservation and development of ground water."

Barnes also outlined a scholarship program to attract young doctors and nurses to rural areas and keep them there.

He cited the number of small hospitals and clinics being forced to close because of inadequate personnel and suggested an "on-the-job" training program for medical students under supervision of physicians.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Drugs By The Department Is The Story At Dusek's

When you say drug store, you mean drug department store at Dusek's.

When you say pharmacy, you mean three registered pharmacists -- Alvin and son Bernay, and Franklyn Dusek.

A walk through Dusek's is a walk through a departmentalized listing of cosmetic, pharmaceutical and gift notion "who's who."

Dusek's has it.

Several ladies are kept busy serving the customers who find what they want.

Just a sampling of what brands are available: Timex watches, Westclox, clocks, Parke-Davis first aid notions, Sheaffer's pens, BIC pens, Foster Grant sunglasses, Russell Stover and King's chocolates.

Cosmetics, both men's and women's, headline shelves of name brands like: Black Belt, Max Factor, Old Spice, Tussy, Coty's Elan, L'Zimant, Imprevu, Emeraude, Revlon, Ogilvie, Jergens, Aqua Velva to name a few of the quite-a-few.

Pharmacists Alvin, Franklyn and Bernay stay busy. One clerk helps type orders as the prescriptions are filled by the professionals. Lines of shelves in walls of pharmaceuticals await the need of a doctor's prescription, whatever the ill.

Delivery is to the home, without additional cost, the day you need the prescription. The Pharmacy is as professional as gifts and drugs throughout the store are complete.

The usual line of tobacco products, cigars, cigarettes, pipes, pipe tobacco are near the entrance for convenience.

Magazines, newspapers, comics and pocketbooks are available. Christmas and remembrance cards for all occasions by Ambassador and Rust Craft await.

Culpepper's Means Fine Home Furnishings

Culpepper's in Cameron means home furnishings from floor to ceiling, from kitchen to living-room anytime.

Manager Frank Richter, Jr., can advise on what is suitable for the home. His 25 years experience, 12 of them manager of the 10,000 square-foot furniture and appliance center, assures the knowledgeability to make your dollar get value received.

Owner of Culpepper Furniture and Milam Music Co., managed by Dwight Moody, is Wallace Culpepper, of Cameron. The store opened in the downtown Cameron location in 1944.

Assisting in sales at Culpepper Furniture is Miss

Lena Mae Riddle, who has 14 years of sales experience in this Cameron business.

Assisting Moody in Milam Music Co., which retails records of all kinds are Eddie Pavelek and Katherine Junek.

Backing Culpepper Furniture's name is a list of, indeed departments full of name-brand merchandise assuring customers value.

Names like General Electric, Dearborn, Zenith, Frigidaire, Hoover, Ever-ready, O'Cedar, Pyrex, Morning Glory, Gates, Samsonite, Tappan, Blue Lustre are household words and are everyday stock merchandise at the huge furniture center.

Major purchases like refrigerators, luggage, appliances, vacuum cleaners, heaters, rugs, tables, television and stereo sets are well stocked.

It is always a pleasure to shop where you know the merchandise is good and the personnel are qualified to demonstrate it, to describe its construction and serviceability and the terms on which you may purchase it.

Christmas Program For Delphians

Mrs. Carroll Green presented a Christmas story "The Boy Who Was Too Old For Christmas" and a selection of Christmas poems for the Cameron Delphian Club meeting Wednesday afternoon.

The Christmas meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Alvin Dusek with co-hostesses Mrs. A. W. McCullin, Mrs. Louise Cullom and Mrs. Leland Green, Sr.

Following the program Miss Linda Hughes lead the group in singing Christmas carols.

During a brief business meeting members hear a report that a metal coat rack had been purchased as a Christmas gift for the Cameron Community Center.

Spiced punch, individual fruit cakes, cheese, nuts and candy were served in the dining room where a white candle and silver centered the serving table.

Guests were Mrs. Jesse Brock and Mrs. T. E. Crump.

Births

To Mr. and Mrs. Warren Dee Hillman of Rt. 1, Cameron, a boy, Warren Dean, 7 pounds 2 1/2 ounces, born Dec. 7 at 10:25 a.m. at Newton Memorial Hospital. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kamenicky and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hillman, all of Buckholts.

College Notes

Danny E. Baldrige of Cameron is one of 87 tentative candidates for bachelor's degrees in the University of Texas College of Fine Arts. No commencement exercises will be held.

Yule Carols Highlight History Club Program

Mrs. Tommy Corley presented a program of Christmas music for the Cameron History Club December meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Miss Mildred Thornton.

The Thornton home was decorated for the Yule season with hurricane lamps bordering the front walk, a traditional Christmas tree, greenery and candles in the party rooms.

Mrs. Corley sang a selection of Christmas music coordinated by a dialogue that gave insights into the composers and the inspiration for the carol. She was introduced by Mrs. John B. Henderson, Sr. and accompanied at the piano by Miss Susan Rosson.

Following the program members exchanged gifts from the Christmas tree.

During the social hour tea and coffee, tea sandwiches, fruit cake and mints were served in the dining room. The serving table was centered with a Christmas candle. Mrs. John B. Henderson, Sr. presided at the coffee service.

Guests for the afternoon program were Mrs. W. C.

Wiese of Calvert, Miss Lois Randolph, Mrs. Bob Terry, Miss Christine Laws, Mrs. Perry Holder, Miss Rosson and Mrs. Corley.

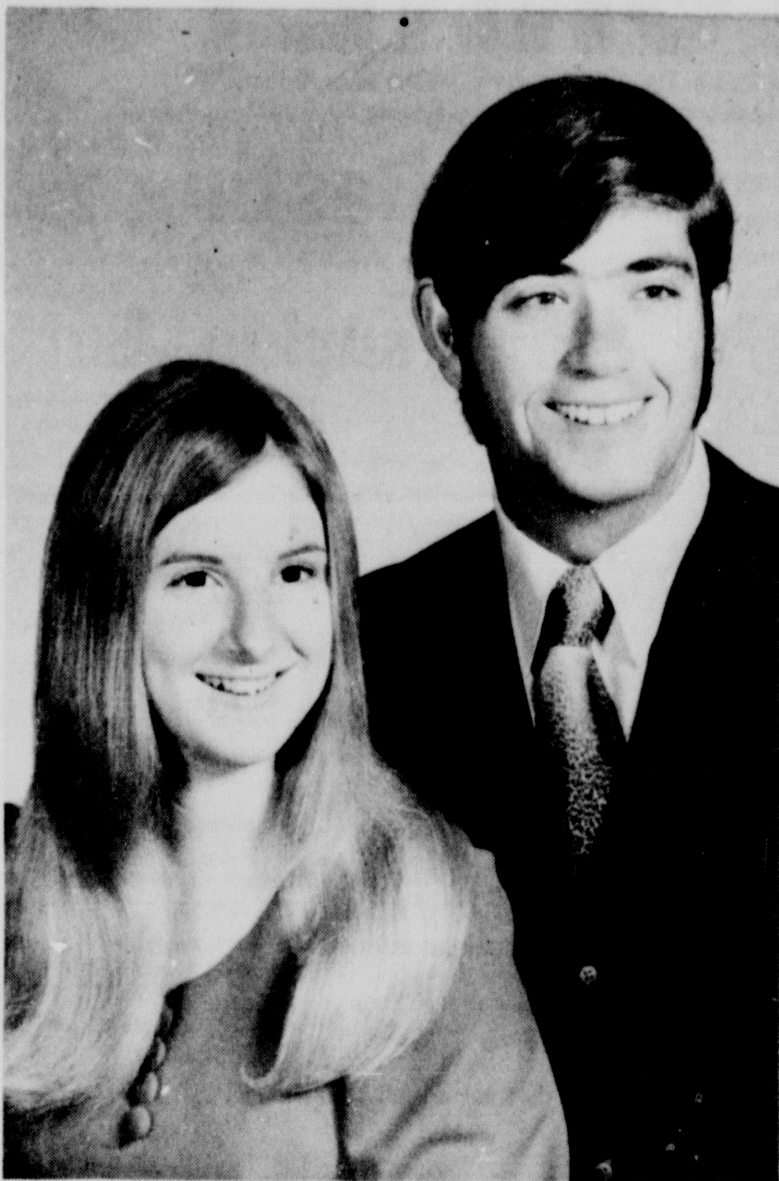

Hostesses for the Christmas party were Mrs. Hilry Stedman, Mrs. E. A. Perrin, Mrs. K. K. Robbins, Miss Maurine House and Miss Thornton.

Couple To Observe Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ure Satterwhite, Route 1, Buckholts, will observe their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, December 26. They will be honored with an open house, at their home, from 2:30 until 5 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle E. Norton, Gary and Kristie, are hosting the open house.

Friends of the couple are invited to attend. The couple has requested that no gifts be sent.

ENGAGED -- Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stanislaw of Buckholts announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Rosalie Victoria, to Mr. Dennis Keith Thornblom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Thornblom of Brownwood. The couple is planning a January 8 wedding at St. Cyril and Methodius Catholic in Marak.

Consumer Specialist Suggests Buying Tips

COLLEGE STATION

Interested in saving money while shopping for the family food supply this week? Then follow these marketing tips, suggests Gwendolyn Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

Although specials on beef cuts are rather limited this week, the specialist says best beef values include chuck steaks and roast, round steaks, ground beef and liver.

Pork supplies are adequate, with good values available on loin end roasts, one-fourth and one-half loins cut into chops, smoked picnics, shoulder steaks, hams and ham portions, bacon and frankfurters.

Fryer chicken prices are about the same as last week, with occasional specials featuring whole fryers or cut up fryers. Mrs. Clyatt also suggests special packs of parts.

Turkey prices are also about the same as last week, with more emphasis on the 10-14 pound birds.

Grade A large size eggs continue to offer the best combination of economy and quality for your egg money. A wide choice of fresh fruits are still available.

Seedless grapes, prunes, bananas, plums and avocados are low priced items. New crop apples are more plentiful and quality is improving. Red Tokay grapes are also making their appearance. Nectarines, pears, cantaloupes and honeydew melons are worthy of your consideration -- qualitywise and price-wise.

In the vegetable market, carrots are more plentiful than a few weeks back. Several varieties of hard shell squash are now available. Cabbage, mustard, collards, turnip tops, potatoes, green peppers, corn, sweet potatoes and yellow onions are among the more economical vegetable choices. Eggplant, broccoli and cauliflower of very good quality is moderately priced to help add variety to your menus.

When buying lemons, remember they should have a glossy skin, say Extension foods and nutrition specialists. A slightly green tint on the skin has no effect on juiciness, but smooth-skinned lemons usually have more juice than rough-skinned types.

St. Monica Ladies Give Gift Baskets

St. Monica's Ladies Society met Tuesday for their regular monthly meeting.

The Thanksgiving clothing drive was discussed, and clothes collected would be taken to the Blessed Sacrament Church and distributed there.

At Christmas, food baskets will be prepared for six needy families, and cheer gifts will be assembled and distributed at the rest homes.

It was voted by society members to purchase twelve new surplices for the altar boys and also a new altar cloth.

Three new members, Mrs. John Cordier, Mrs. Wilbert Lucko, and Mrs. Frank Reinsner were formally enrolled following mass on Dec. 8th on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Candles Have History

In many homes nothing suits the holiday season more than a slow-burning Santa Claus.

Reindeer, dimpled angels, and snowballs can add to the glow.

No matter what its size or shape, the candle, a source of light for countless centuries, rates a place with the Christmas tree and "Auld Lang Syne," the National Geographic Society says.

The traditional light has come a long way since some ingenious ancient discovered that he could coat a fibrous wick with fatty substances and produce a light superior to pitch knots or grease-soaked reeds.

Shaped to Order
The creative designs of today's candles cover almost every festive occasion. They appear as ice cream sodas, flowers, and clowns. Massive centerpieces carved like giant pillars light banquet tables; delicate tapers shaped like bamboo shoots illuminate more intimate meals.

Ordinary candles brighten some homes every night of the year. "A candle," says one glowing enthusiast, "is the necktie of home furnishing -- the final, perfecting touch."

Few things in use today are as old as candles. The ancient Greeks made them by dipping papyrus or hemp impregnated with sulphur into liquid tallow or beeswax. The Romans improved the Grecian candles by using solidified oils.

In colonial America, generations of housewives made fragrant candles from bayberries. The waxy green berries grow on bushes throughout New England. An old rhyme says:

"Bayberry candles
Burned to the socket
Bring joy to the house
And gold to the pocket."

Candles have long been used in rituals and ceremonies. The Old Testament mentions both candles and candlesticks. Present-day churches are the largest institutional users in the United States.

Flames Fostered Legends
While candles traditionally are associated with religious worship, many superstitions have leapt from the flickering light. If a flame burns blue, there is a ghost in the house. A spark signifies that a letter is coming to the person sitting nearest the flame.

Candles have been turned to uses other than lighting. England's King Alfred the Great (849-899) ordered the manufacture of time-keeping tapers sized to burn in 24 hours. A thin horn shield protected the flickering clock against air currents.

In both England and the American colonies, the saying "sale by the inch of a candle" signified an auction at which people could bid until a bit of candle burned out.

Try Shrimp And Fish For Unusual Holiday Dips

If you're looking for something better than the usual holiday-season dips and spreads, try fish.

A "Smoked Fish Log" is unusual and attractive, both visually and from a flavor standpoint. And it is far removed from the usual bland-colored, shapeless dish of dip.

The basic ingredients are flaked or smoked fish and cream cheese. The taste is different because of a subtle smoky flavor.

The shape results from the mixture being rolled to look like a Yule Log. It's first shaped, then rolled in pecans and parsley to give it a festive look.

Despite its colorful appearance, the smoked fish log is easy to prepare. Just poach one pound of fish fillets in boiling salted water for 10 minutes. Cook only long enough for the flesh to flake easily when tested with a fork.

Allow to cool, then remove any remaining bones or skin. If you can buy or prepare smoked fish the resulting flavor will be even better.

This dish proves that onion soup mix isn't the only way to fix party hors d'oeuvres, so "think fish." For other fish recipe ideas, send your name and address to Seafood Recipes, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Austin, Texas 78701

SMOKED FISH LOG

- 2 cups flaked fish or 1 pound smoked fish
- 1 package (8oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons grated onion
- 1 teaspoon horseradish
- 1 teaspoon liquid smoke (if not smoked fish)
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Drain and flake fish. Combine cheese, lemon juice, onion, horseradish, liquid smoke, salt, and fish; mix thoroughly. Chill for several hours. Combine pecans and parsley. Shape fish mixture into a log. Roll in nut mixture. Serve with assorted crackers. Makes approximately two cups spread.

sorted crackers. Makes approximately two cups spread.

Have you joined the 200-year-old entertaining fad? There may be little resemblance between the utensils of the Swiss mountain dweller who originated fondue and a new electric fondue pot, but the spirit is the same. The modern version has expanded the classic pot of cheese and wine to include a bubbling vessel of oil which cooks small pieces of meat or fish.

Although seafood seems far removed from some people's image of the Holidays, it is very adaptable to the fondue theme. Fresh Texas Gulf coast fishery products are delicious when cooked in this manner, and when dipped in one of several savory sauces they become a gourmet's delight.

FISH FONDUE

Enough fresh shrimp, finfish and oysters to allow 1/5 to 1/2 pound per person son

7 or 8 slices of bacon

Cooking oil, approximately 1 quart

1 teaspoon salt

Sauces as desired

Peel shrimp, leaving on last shell segment and tail section. Cut fish into strips or bite-size pieces. Drain oysters well, roll in flour and wrap each in 1/3 slice of bacon. Secure with a wooden pick. Refrigerate all seafood until 1/2 hour before serving time, drain well or pat dry with paper towel.

Pour oil into fondue cooker to 2-inch depth or no more than 1/2 capacity of pot. Heat to 375 degrees F; add salt.

Spear fish with fondue fork; fry in hot oil until lightly browned. Shrimp require a minute or less to cook, fish need a bit more time, depending on size of piece. For easier handling transfer to dinner fork; dip in sauce.

Suitable sauces: Cocktail, tartar, sweet-sour, herb butter, curry.

Farmers Union Delegates Hear Senator Humphrey

Mr. and Mrs. George Dodd Willie Morow and Charles Ed Hensley of Milam County and other delegates to the 68th annual convention of Texas Farmers Union Meeting in San Antonio heard Minnesota Senator Hubert Humphrey urge them to support their farm organization and their cooperatives.

Other speakers at the annual convention were Congressman Graham Purcell, South Dakota Farmers Union President Ben Radcliffe, Lieutenant Governor Ben Barnes, and representatives of 4-H, FFA, FHA, Young Farmers, Young Homemakers and the Farmers Union Youth Council.

Some of the most important actions of the delegates included a call for the federal cotton program to better reflect normal yields with adequate provisions for natural disaster, more realistic trailer lighting and brake requirements; and an agricultural exemption on the farm truck driver regulations.

Property tax relief was an item receiving considerable attention. The delegates asked for a study by Farmers Union to consider legal action should the state legislature fail to act to lower property taxes on farms and ranches.

The convention reaffirmed its commitment to a commodity - b y - commodity approach to nationwide bargaining system that will guarantee farmers the right to bargain for fair prices.

A special resolution was passed asking for passage by the House of Representatives for this Strategic Reserve Bill. This bill would enable the government to purchase surplus grains and hold them in a strategic reserve thus benefiting both farmers and consumers. The delegates also expressed support for an amendment to the Strategic Reserve Bill sponsored by Representative Melcher of Montana immediately raising price support loans by 25%.

Doors Of Yoe

By Marilyn Hauk

Wow! What beautiful legs you have Mike Trdy and Alva Ray Mullinax. All the better for being two wacky characters in the Junior Play last Thursday and Friday nights.

Mr. Dusek walked out of his room Tuesday and found a "traveling troubadour", Dennis Hardwick, sitting on the floor tuning a guitar.

And later that day -- Miss Kosel's second and fifth period English classes were serenaded with music not from Guitarzan, but Guitar-Rae.

Steve Thweatt, Rock Thweatt, and Mark Monroe, next time you look in a girl's purse for notes you may find a mouse trap (or a frog as the case may be.)

Does a person ever get too old to write to Santa? Gary Thweatt and Mike Trdy answered that question Thursday. Upon questioning what they wanted their only reply was "Why as for a subscription when you can ask for the pinups?" Their Christmas present remains a mystery.

Billy Wheeler, there's a wall out there! Hope you're feeling better.

The Yoe High Student Council sponsored a Door Decorating Contest last week. Coach Laurence's room won first place. Mrs. McIntosh's room was tied for first place but disqualified for unethical practices. (The Christmas tree is looking a little thin.)

Christmas music filled the Yoe High Gym Thursday as the Yoe High Band gave their annual Christmas Concert. Joe Pitts, thank you for providing bubbles for that performance. Next time we play Champaign Music we will be sure and look you up.

The Spanish Club held their Christmas party. Pinatas have a way of disappearing, don't they?

Ole Miss Scientists Grow Marijuana For Research

OXFORD, Miss. — University of Mississippi scientists, returning from an international conference on marijuana held in Sweden, report that phase one of intensive studies on marijuana usage -- limited to effects on animals -- has concluded.

However, phase two -- studies of effects on humans -- has received the "green light" from government officials.

Some preliminary experiments on humans have been made in the past but only on a limited basis, as scientists have awaited governmental approval and support. In connection with marijuana research, Ole Miss has a unique agricultural enterprise.

It farms marijuana for a reason, and, legally.

The university was selected several years ago by the National Institute of Mental Health, of Bethesda, Md. to raise marijuana crops annually for research purposes at major research centers across the United States.

The purpose of the marijuana farm project is to produce a high quality natural marijuana for research use. Previously, contraband material confiscated by Bureau of Customs and Bureau of Narcotics people was used.

"This material has had an uncertain history as to its age, origin and the variety of plant from which it came," explained one of the university staff.

The Ole Miss drug farm project grows the plant on government land in several locations. All but one of which are secret. The exception is a small plot on the university campus.

The plot is surrounded by a high, unclimbable fence, and is kept under constant observation.

The fall symposium, sponsored in Stockholm in late October by the Swedish Academy of Pharmaceutical Sciences, stressed the chemistry and biological aspects of marijuana.

Among the U.S. delegation were Dr. Coy Waller, director of the Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences at Ole Miss, and Dr. Carleton E. Turner, project supervisor and coordinator of the marijuana project at Ole Miss.

"This was a basic meeting to acquaint scientists of the world with data generated to date, so that we can all start on the same footing in determining what marijuana does to humans," Waller said.

"Considered at Stockholm were the growing of the plant, isolation of its chemical constituents, synthesis, analytical controls, biological results in animals -- all as a prelude to human studies. And this has now received the 'green light' from the government."

Attending the international conference were delegates from Switzerland, Sweden, the United States, Denmark, Italy, Brazil, West Germany, Great Britain, Israel, Yugoslavia, Norway, and Canada.

Poster War Rages Argentina

By Stewart Russell
Reuter Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES

Walls are battlegrounds in a war of words helping to shape the political future of Argentina.

Paint brushes and sprays have always been favorite tools for political militants operating under cover of darkness here.

Street propaganda reached new levels of sophistication when President Alejandro Lanusse relaxed the army government's ban on political activity earlier this year and promised a general election in 1973.

Posters produced by a bewildering variety of political groups -- and groups within groups -- cover all available space in city center streets, vying for the attention of passers-by.

Some are professionally designed, others the crude efforts of backstreet printing shops. Some use pictures, other words -- sometimes hundreds of words -- to put across their message.

Trendsetter for the new-style onslaught on the eyes was a leftist study group which plastered thousands of bright red posters with the headlined question "Whom are we working for?"

The posters listed more than 100 local firms, to try to prove that Argentine industry and commerce is dominated by foreigners.

The posters attracted crowds of readers, provoking animated discussion and scribbled amendments by instant experts who thought they knew better.

More significantly it provoked some firms into taking space in newspapers and magazines to argue that they were solid, patriotic Argentine enterprises, working staunchly for the good of the country.

The poster war escalated, until today anybody walking through the Argentine capital with an hour or two to spare for careful scrutiny of the walls can clean a fair education in the complexities of the current political scene.

Prize specimens currently on view include color pictures of a demurely smiling Isabel Martinez, third wife of exiled former dictator Juan Peron.

Senora Peron, who lives with her husband in Spain, flew to Argentina last week in a bid to reconcile feuding Peronist factions.

"Without Peron -- no solution" the posters warn. Still on view are posters put up to mark the anniversary of the death in 1952 of Peron's second wife. Evita -- emphasizing that she is "still alive in the soul of her people."

A conservative Roman Catholic group prints an icon-style picture of Christ with rifle slung over his shoulder.

"Christ a guerrilla?" it questions and answers. "Never God is peace."

A Satanic figure, with the unlikely fashion combination of "Uncle Sam" top hat and a hammer and sickle cloak, threatens a map of Argentina with a huge saw. "Don't let them cut off any more" the poster screams.

Cane Pole Fishermen Face Costs

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.

There's a tempest brewing in the Florida legislature over the traditional "cane pole fisherman," who uses the Huckleberry Finn technique, miles from the glittering coastline.

Governor Reubin Askew is running into stiff opposition from conservationists, over his fight to exempt fishermen who use cane poles from having to buy fresh water fishing licenses. A recently passed Florida law makes these licences mandatory.

Askew contends the tax will create a hardship for thousands of rural Floridians who supplement their diet through cane pole fishing in the state's many inland waters.

"I only want the exemptions for cane pole fishermen in their home counties," said Askew, adding that he promises to find replacement dollars elsewhere if necessary.

Florida Game Commission Director Dr. Earle Frye said, "I can't see making a fine distinction between fishing with a cane pole or with a rod and reel. It's a matter of equity to have the three dollar licence for all fishermen."

Frye went on to say his agency was anticipating $800,000 in revenue from cane pole licences, and the loss of these funds would hurt his commission's programs in fish research and restocking and would hamper conservation efforts.

Askew has the vocal support of Rep. Joe Lang Kershaw, a black legislator from Miami, who led the fight against the cane pole tax from the very beginning.

RIVER STAINS

The Zaire River in Africa, formerly known as the Congo, empties 1,400,000 cubic feet of water into the Atlantic Ocean every second, the National Geographic Society says. The discharge stains the ocean brown for 30 miles out to sea.

CHINA LAND

Though mainland China covers a vast 3,691,506 square miles, only 12 percent of the land is cultivated, National Geographic says.

College Essays Are Big Business

TORONTO

Who says cheaters never prosper? Cheating on essays, a quiet fact of campus life for years, is becoming the basis for big business.

It's so big, in fact, that American companies made about $250,000 selling essays last year -- and now they plan to expand into Canada.

One U.S. company is training men to manage offices in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. Another is planning to install a free phone system for students to use to order essays from anywhere in North America.

The trade in purchases essays which students hand as their own so far has been casual in Canada.

Fraternities have been singled out as one of the few organizations to maintain well-stocked essay banks.

"Sure there's essay trading between frat members," said John Kenrick, president of the University of Toronto's Inter-Fraternity Council.

"But it's all on a personal basis. Our house has a file. But its only got about 15 papers and they're all old ones."

He said the practice among fraternities is dying out.

To date, commercialized plagiarism, as this new industry is called, has taken its strongest roots around Boston where the student population exceeds 150,000. Boston also has an adequate labor pool -- writers, teachers and graduate students who have fallen on hard times and need the money they can make ghostwriting essays.

In the U.S. last year the leading essay houses sold more than 10,000 papers at an average cost of three dollars a page. This produced close to $250,000.

And one company spokesman said the industry will do an even bigger business this year.

School officials said if the practice is allowed to continue a college degree will become increasingly less credible as a certification of a high level of academic competence.

Firms claim they are educational publishing houses and will provide, on request, custom-made essays on any given topic.

Bill Carmody, who runs the oldest and largest such firm, International Term-papers Inc., has built a file or more than 80,000 essays and has a staff of more than 400 free-lance writers who will write to form for a fee of 50 cents to one dollar a page. Carmody retails copies for 2.25 dollars a page.

So far, the firm advertises only in the U.S. but, "Soon we're installing a toll-free phone service so kids can get to us free from anywhere in North America."

"We're becoming more and more interested in Canada," said Carmody, who said he has had inquiries from Ontario interests about opening a franchise in Canada.

SID Chapter Sought In Cajon

By William Barry
Reuter Correspondent

EL CAJON, Calif.

An El Cajon woman trying to organize a local chapter of the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death (SID) the mysterious killer of babies.

The woman, Mrs. Sally Saltzstein, and her husband, Sydney, a doctor at the University of California at San Diego, lost their infant son in 1966. She left the apparently healthy child one minute and found it dead minutes later.

No one knows anything about the disease. There are no symptoms. A mother goes out of the room to cook dinner and returns to find her baby dead.

Doctors refer to the disease as the "sudden infant death syndrome." It often leaves mother and fathers with an unbearable feeling of guilt.

This is what Mrs. Saltzstein is interested in preventing. "Our main concern is education and by this to ease the guilt felt by parents losing a child to SID," Mrs. Saltzstein said. "The impact of such a loss is almost unbelievable. Many families never recover."

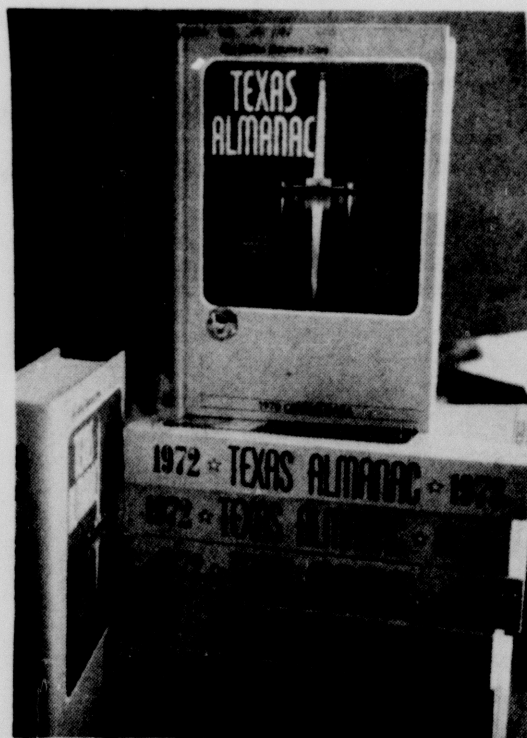

She said she knew of one mother who ended up in a mental institution. Another case ended in divorce and another in which the mother was ostracized by friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Saltzstein said the main message of the foundation is that SID is a disease, just like mumps or diphtheria, and that parents should not feel guilty.

Decking Halls Has History

"Christ was born on Christmas day, Wreath the holly, twine the bay."
From England of long ago come the words of this carol, showing the early role of the bay tree and its greens in decorating for Christmas.
Its use harks back to ancient Greece, when both the bay and the laurel bedecked homes and public places in symbol of triumph. As traditional Christmas greens, they reflect the same joyful spirit, say the editors of the Grolier Universal Encyclopedia.
Holly, of course, is still popular as Yuletide greenery. But nowadays, when it's time to deck the halls, bay leaves are more likely to spice holiday cookery, rather than holiday decorating.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

When you receive unordered merchandise through the mails, do you know your legal rights?

A law passed by the Sixty-first Texas Legislature in 1969 provides that where unsolicited goods are delivered to a person, he has the right to refuse to accept delivery of the goods and he is not bound to return the goods to the sender.

If such unsolicited goods are either addressed to or intended for the recipient, they shall be deemed a gift and the recipient may use them or dispose of them in any manner without any obligation to the sender.

There are three exceptions to this law - first, when the goods are sent due to a bona fide mistake, and the sender has the burden of proof to show the error. Second, the law does not apply to goods which have been substituted for goods ordered. Finally, the act does not apply to goods ordered by the recipient.

In summary, if a consumer received merchandise which he did not order he can refuse the goods or treat the goods as a gift. The consumer is under no legal obligation to pay for the merchandise received in this fashion.

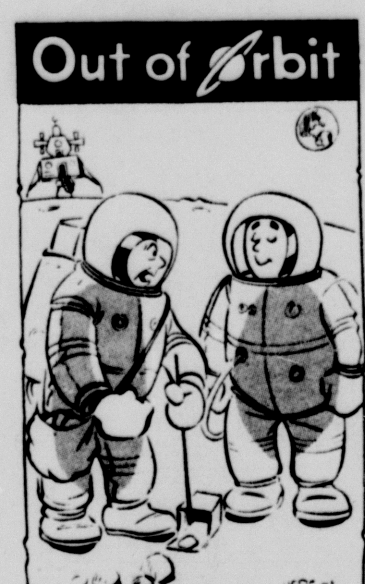

The related area is the negative option plan employed by Book and Record Clubs whereby an individual signs a contract with the club and items are automatically sent to him.

Under this negative option arrangement, the consumer is obligated to pay for all items received unless he returns a card to the company indicating his refusal to purchase the item.

The common complaint with this plan is the failure of the consumer to realize his legal obligation if he fails to periodically notify the company of his wishes. In addition, some companies do not allow a sufficient time period to receive the option cards prior to mailing the merchandise.

The consumer who signs up with one of these companies should understand his legal obligations under the contract and be alert when the option notices are received so that merchandise is not inadvertently ordered.

New 'Criminal Tax' Brings In $335,349

Rep. Dan Kubiak said the new "criminal tax" has brought in $335,349 in September, its first month of collection.

The money is earmarked for the Criminal Justice Council and has been levied as an additional court cost since August 30. The tax imposes a $2.50 court cost on all convictions in county level courts and $10 in felony convictions in district courts.

Kubiak said that during the first month, Houston criminals footed the major share of the collections, paying $50,886.

TRAILER BRAKES

He said he has drafted corrections on the controversial SB 183 for introduction in the special session.

"In conferring with the DPS, I have been told they do not intend to issue tickets but will issue warning tickets until the new bills are considered by the legislature," he said.

"If any of you should get a ticket for not having brakes on your trailer, you should contact my office immediately, and we will refer this to Col. Wilson Speir of the DPS. He has faithfully promised to aid each of us in the rural areas in this matter."

The corrections drafted by Rep. Kubiak would exclude farm, horse and boat trailers from the provisions of the bill.

HELIUM FOUND

The gaseous element helium was detected on the sun by early solar scientists before it was discovered on Earth.

Any size fits.

U.S. Savings Bonds come in a lot of sizes. So do people. But unlike other gifts, you don't have to match the size of the Bond to the size of the person. Any size fits. That's what's so beautiful about Savings Bonds. There's no guessing. No worry. And no matter what size Bond you give it's a very personal gift. After all, you're helping a person with his future and that shows you care a lot. Give U.S. Savings Bonds. The gift idea that always fits.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Banish Breakfast Blues and Bring Variety To the Table with Meals Featuring Meat

Apathetic morning appetites awaken when imaginative and diverse foods are served. So stop being conventional; start being creative! Bring to the breakfast table entrees such as sausage-topped Easy-Do Pizzas, Beefburgers on Buns and Bacon-Hawaiian toast.

Besides providing enjoyable eating, meat helps make the morning meal adequate, advises Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. A breakfast providing one-fourth to one-third of the day's nutritional needs promotes efficiency in mental and physical work, provides energy and helps eliminate a craving for high-calorie mid-morning snacks.

Easy-Do Pizzas

- 1 pound pork sausage links
- 2 tablespoons water
- 4 slices bread, toasted
- 4 slices mozzarella cheese
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano

Place sausage links and water in cold frying-pan.

Cover tightly and cook slowly 5 minutes. Remove cover and brown links. Place a cheese slice on each slice of toast and arrange 3 sausage links on each. Combine tomato sauce and oregano. Spoon sauce over each sandwich. Bake on a cookie sheet in a very hot oven (450° F.) 6 to 8 minutes. Yield: 4 servings.

Beefburgers on Buns

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 6 to 8 hamburger buns

Combine ground beef and seasoning and shape into 6 to 8 patties 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick. Broil or panbroil.

To broil: Set oven regulator for broiling. Place beefburgers on rack under broiler so surface of patties is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil for 7 to 8 minutes on one side. Turn and continue cooking 6 to 12 minutes longer, depending upon degree of doneness desired. Serve on hamburger buns. 6 to 8 servings.

To panbroil: Place patties in lightly greased frying-pan. Cook slowly 8 to 10 minutes. Turn and cook 5 to 10 minutes longer, depending upon degree of doneness desired. Serve on hamburger buns. 6 to 8 servings.

Bacon-Hawaiian Toast

- 12 slices bacon
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon

8 slices bread
4 slices pineapple, if desired
Beat eggs until light and fluffy. Add pineapple juice, sugar, salt and cinnamon and beat thoroughly. Pour over bread and let stand 5 to 10 minutes, turning if necessary. Place bacon in a cold frying-pan. Cook slowly, turning frequently. Pour off and reserve drippings as they accumulate. Remove bacon to absorbent paper. Fry bread in bacon drippings on both sides until golden brown. Remove to warm platter. Fry well-drained pineapple slices in drippings. Serve French toast with bacon and pineapple slices. 4 servings.

Frank Rescue

Frankfurters never fail to come to the aid of busy cooks. Pop them in a casserole instead of a bun and they come to the table hot and delicious. Nutritious, too, since a frank provides 7 grams protein (only 170 calories).
